Betsy Price

Former Mayor, City of Fort Worth

Now a candidate for Tarrant County Judge, Betsy Price served as Mayor of Fort Worth for 10 years. When she was first elected Mayor in 2011, she brought an ambitious vision to raise the bar for the city of Fort Worth. This started with improving the basics of any growing city – public safety, mobility, fiscal responsibility, and job growth. She also wanted to help ensure a sustainable city for future generations by promoting grassroots public engagement, supporting healthy lifestyles, and championing public education.

Prior to serving as Mayor, Betsy has been an active mother and a leader in the Fort Worth community for years, serving numerous boards, commissions, and professional associations. She'll be quick to say that, prior to her public service, one of her favorite community roles was to lead the PTA for Paschal High School, watching bright local youth grow into productive members of the community.

After running her own successful business for 17 years, Betsy turned to public service and was first elected in 2000 to serve as Tarrant County's Tax Assessor. Not afraid to ask the tough questions, Betsy quickly made her department one of the most efficient in Texas, saving taxpayers millions of dollars.

She is proud of her proven record as a strong and energetic leader who brings people together to focus on what's best for our entire community. As the next Tarrant County Judge, she plans to continue finding innovative solutions that protect taxpayers, making neighborhoods safe and growing the local economy with quality jobs.

Betsy graduated from Arlington Heights High School and earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Texas at Arlington. Together with her husband Tom, Betsy has three adult children. In her spare time, Betsy is an avid cyclist and enjoys spending quality time with her six grandchildren.
